

Mickler & Associates, Inc.

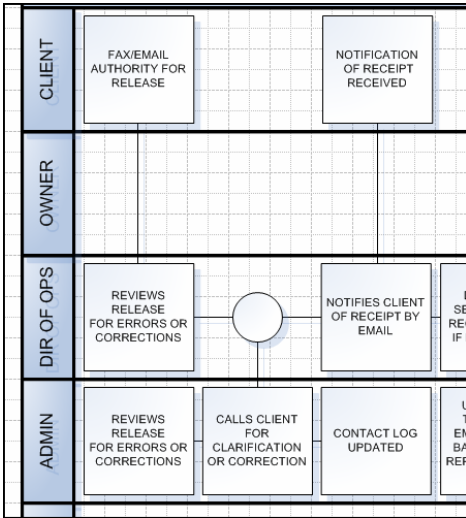

Yeah.

That's what we call Process Improvement.

We love going from zero to hero.

Applied strategically, technology can improve the business activities that support your core competencies. Through appropriate application, the speed, accuracy, and reliability of your activities can be improved to reduce waste, shorten cycle time, and provide greater visibility over your business as a whole. Technology, applied innovatively, may even transform your business model.

Applying technology strategically requires a good plan—an understanding of risks, rewards, and expected outcomes. Mickler & Associates, Inc. is uniquely suited to help you with process improvement strategies. Our principal consultant — an expert with a background in technology and ISO 9001—has helped small to mid-range businesses document their processes and have recommended incremental improvements to gain competitive benefits. There's more to technology than just email, servers, and operating systems. Call us and find out how we can help you streamline your business and improve profitability.

Time Distribution
Proposed Functional Specification

